JOHN R. WEBSTER'S SPEECH.

Delivered at The Unveiling of The Gillies Monument Yesterday.

I esteem it a great honor to perform the part assigned me in the exercises of this memorable day. It is always a pleasure to visit this historic field, reclaimed and beautified by the Guilford Battle Ground Company, under the leadership of Judge David Schenck, at once the brainiest and most patriotic man in the state, whose defence of the North Carolina militia has silenced their calumniators and made this spot, long the scene of their supposed shame, the delight of all patriotic hearts.

There are others who could discharge the task assigned me more creditably and satisfactorily than I can hope to do, but none can speak from a fuller heart or with more sincere admiration for the noble spirit of patriotism displayed by the young people who have chosen to add a new treasure to this hallowed spot. Silver and gold have I none, but such as I have I give you.

The pleasing office of voicing the sentiment of the donors and telling the story of the brave bugler boy has been wisely conferred upon another and it falls to my lot to express the appreciation of the alumni of Oak Ridge Institute of the noble action of the literary societies in linking the name of their alma mater with the memory of one whose story the world will not let die. They are proud of the school and rejoice in its prosperity. Whatever of success they are achieved so far in life and whatever of hope they have for the future, they attribute in large measure to the thorough and conscientious training they received at Oak Ridge. Next to their own homes they regard it as the dearest spot on earth and feel toward it as the psalmist did when he said:

If I forget thee, oh Jerusalem,
Let my right hand forget her cunning
If I do not remember thee,
Let my tongue cleave to the roof of My mouth, if I prefer not Jerusalem

They rejoice to see their old places filled by each bright and promising boys and feel the sacrifice made by them to perpetuate the memory of the little hero who gave his all for liberty is a guarantee that they have in them the stuff of which patriots are made.

It is to the glory of Oak Ridge Institute that its ambition is to make men and not partisans. It asks the support of no party or sect as the propagator of their peculiar views, but stands upon its own intrinsic merits. It knows no Baptist physics, Presbyterian mathematics, nor Methodist book-keeping. It inculcates a patriotism as broad as the country and a religion as deep as human need. It envisions the success of no other institution either State, ecclesiastical or private, but would join heart and hand with all of them in banishing ignorance and lifting humanity upon a higher plane.

The exercises of this day attest the patriotic sentiment that pervades the atmosphere of that institution. They proclaim in eloquent tones that love of country and admiration of the true and noble are being instilled into the minds of its pupils. It is the law of our nature that we become like those whom we habitually admire, and the importance of setting before the youth of our country correct models of virtue and patriotism cannot be over-estimated. These young people have been inspired to make a noble sacrifice, putting their money into a memorial that will teach a lesson of heroism to coming generations, by reading the story of the bugler boy. His was a humble part in the drama of blood that emancipated a continent, but we shall never know till the books are opened in the final day how much the world owes to the modest hero. Great battles are often decided by a trifling incident, just as the flutter of a bird's wing at a certain point of the Rocky Mountains may send one drop of water toward the Pacific ocean and another toward the Atlantic. No doubt the martial blast of the bugler boy whose monument we dedicate this day nerved many a soldier for the fight and inspired the noblest deeds of daring. Muchback relates an incident in the life of the great military genius of France. At Marengo the Man of Destiny, sad and disheartened thought the battle lost. He called to a drummer boy and ordered him to beat a retreat. The lad replied:

"Sire, I do not know how. Dessaix has never taught me retreat, but I can beat a charge. Oh, I can beat a charge that will make the dead fall into line! I beat that charge at the Bridge of Lodi; I beat it at Mount Tabor; I beat it at the Pyramids! Oh, may I beat it here?"

The charge was ordered, the battle won, and Marengo was added to the victories of Napoleon.

ADMIRAL DEWEY'S REPORT.

Only Six American Sailors Were Wounded at Manila.

OUR THANKS CABLED TO DEWEY

Eleven Spanish Ships Destroyed Completely—256 Wounded Spaniards Are Held Prisoners.

Cable to THE TELEGRAM.

Hong Kong, May 7—Flag Lieutenant Brundy is now engaged in cabling Commodore Dewey's complete report of the battle of Manila to the authorities in Washington. Only six American sailors were wounded instead of eleven, as was originally cabled. Not a single American sailor was killed.

DETAILS OF THE BATTLE.

The battle began just as day was breaking last Sunday morning. Commodore Dewey took his entire fleet of six vessels through an expanse of water that had been heavily mined and on past Fort Correo without any disaster. The challenge of battle was issued by the Spanish flagship Reina Christina and the challenge was immediately answered by Commodore Dewey from the flagship Olympia. This was quickly followed by the entire American fleet firing at the Spaniards. The Spanish fleet replied by a heavy fire and was followed by Fort Cavite, which opened a murderous and raking fire on the Americans.

FLAGSHIP TAKES FIRE.

The Spanish flagship Reina Christina under the steady fire from the American fleet soon caught fire. Admiral Montijo transferred his flag to the transport vessel Isle de Cuba, which he used as a flagship. Ten minutes later the Spanish cruiser Castilla was completely wrapped in flames.

URNS ON CAVITE.

Commodore Dewey, while still giving battle to the Spanish fleet, turned his attention to fort Cavite and savagely attacked the fort, repeatedly driving the crews from the heavy guns. The bomb proofs at the fort offered but little resistance to the terrible guns of the Americans.

LINE OF BATTLE.

Commodore Dewey's line of battle was formed as follows: The flagship Olympia led the battle line with the cruiser Raleigh a cable's length behind and these were followed by the cruisers Baltimore and Boston, the gunboats Concord and Petrel and the revenue cutter McCullough. By easy maneuvering the American fleet approached the Spaniards under Admiral Montijo.

PLAN OF BATTLE.

The Spanish ships were formed into two two lines flanking the flagship Reina Christina. They remained in this position during the entire action. The American warships continued their maneuvering about the enemy. One after another of the Spanish boats were either burned or run aground to save the crews.

ELEVEN VESSELS DESTROYED.

Commodore Dewey totally destroyed eleven vessels of the Spanish fleet. The list of the vessels is as follows: Flagship Reina Christina, steel cruiser Velasco, iron cruiser; Don Antonio Ulloa, protected iron cruiser; Don Juan de Austria, protected iron cruiser; Isla de Cuba, protected steel cruiser; Isla de Luzon, protected steel cruiser; and the steel gunboats Quiros, Vellalobos, Elecano and Mileno.

ENTIRE FLEET DESTROYED.

Commodore Dewey continued his heavy and destructive firing until the last of the Spanish vessels had been destroyed and the batteries at the forts had been quieted and reduced. He then dispatched the revenue cutter Hugh McCullough to Hong Kong with the news of the victory.

KILLED AND INJURED.

The following is the correct number of the men killed and wounded: American sailors killed.....None Spanish sailors killed.....300 American sailors wounded.....6 Spanish sailors wounded.....400 Spanish vessels destroyed.....11 American vessels destroyed.....None

THE NEW ELISHA.

Some years ago one Mr. Marion Butler drew off from the democratic party and became one of the most rabid of populists. At a time when surely the unlucky star of the state was in the ascendant, through deals and dickers with the republican party, the hereditary enemy of democracy, from the shifting and turmoil incident to warring political factions he managed to snatch the senatorship. By dint of much loud mouthing and demagogic outcry he got himself elected to the national chairmanship of his party. Then the populist platform was the only gospel of salvation for the people and through it alone could any hope for the betterment of hard conditions be logically maintained.

The insignia of populism was Mr. Butler's chief ornament and proudest boast. Why then today should all this be changed? Why should Mr. Butler declare today that populism is really genuine Jeffersonian democracy? How does it come that democracy which was then a slur and an opprobrious epithet is now a name to conjure with? Why should populism, which was then declared to be new and most richly beneficent, today be merely the old Jeffersonian doctrine out of which had grown, according to the choicest spirits of populism, so much oppression of the common people and we know not what evil beside? Most strange, most strange is this! Is it that Mr. Butler alone is able to speak with all the weight of prescience and authority as an interpreter of the Jeffersonian policy of government? Does Mr. Butler seek to play the Elisha to Jefferson's Elijah? However this may be, certain it is that Mr. Butler now is most willing to wear the cloak of democracy despite any reminiscence of a wretched past that may linger in its folds.

Let Mr. Butler stick to the populist party. Democracy wants none of Mr. Butler and none of his interpretations of its tenets. When his services as high priest at its altars are required he will be notified. The signs are not wanting that his own party is about to slough him. Democracy wants no political cast-offs. It does not want the Hon. Uriah Heap Butler and it will not have him. It will not forgive him the stinging disgrace he has brought upon the citizens and the blot that he has made, nay the blot that he is, upon the state.

In the midst of war excitement and rejoicing over victory let it not be forgotten that the United States wants no foreign possessions unless, maybe, a coaling station here and there.

We are accustomed to criticize very sharply Spain's slipshod policy yet we believe in appointing politicians brigadier-generals.

Of all the fool canards that one about Dewey being cooped up in Manila by Spanish gunboats is the fooliest by far.

It appears that Spain has reconcentrated at home as well as in Cuba.

SATURDAY'S LITERARY CHAT.

[All books and magazines mentioned below may be had at Wharton's book store.]

An interesting and instructive paper in the May Century is "The Enchanted Mesa," dealing with the strange Pueblo Indians and one of their ancient habits. The fiction of the number is good and the poetry rather poor. Andrew D. White, formerly minister to Russia, writes of the Russian statesman, or fanatic as you choose, Pobedonotzeff. This jaw splitting statesman is responsible for the reversal of Russia's former liberal policy as well as for the persecution of the Jews. Mr. White seems to think that because the Russian is charming in a social way and appears to be equipped with benevolent intentions that his persecution ought not be very bad to take.

Mrs. Humphrey Ward's new novel is entitled "Helbeck of Bannisdale." It will be published early in June by the Macmillans.

Henry James' forthcoming romance is entitled "In the Cage."

Varina Anne Jefferson Davis has written a new novel called "A Romance of Summer Seas." The scene is laid in Japan. Miss Davis has been working on this story ever since her first novel, "The Veiled Doctor," was published about two years ago.

Clinton Scollard has written a historical romance of Italian life in the fourteenth century, under the title of "A Man-at-Arms."

One of Joel Chandler Harris' new "Tales of the Home Folk in Peace and War" describes the experiences of the besieged citizens of Atlanta during Sherman's march to the sea. Another deals with a Southern conscript.

Justin McCarthy's forthcoming work on "Modern England" deals with the history of England from 1800 down to the present day.

A posthumous volume of Robert Louis Stevenson's verse will be published soon as "A Lowland Sabbath Morn." Some Scotch poems will also be included.

Alphonse Daudet's farewell romance, "Le Soutien de Famille," has at last been issued in an English translation by Levin Carnac under the title of "The Head of the Family." Professor Adolphe Cohn contributes a critical sketch of the dead novelist.

The Zola medal will be gold; on one side will be shown the novelist's head in profile, with the words: "La verite est en marche; rien ne l'arrete plus" (Truth is advancing; nothing will stop it any longer), a phrase taken from his first letter in defense of Dreyfus, published in Le Figaro, November 25, 1897. On the obverse of the disk will be engraved "Homage to Emile Zola."

Frederic Remington has written for the June Harper's "The Spirit of Mahongue," a tale of colonial Indian warfare, as related in a diary written in the quaint English of two hundred years ago.

A new volume in the criminology series is by Louis Proal and treats of "Political Crime."

Molly Elliott Seawell's "Loves of the Lady Arabella" is to see the light as a serial.

The new historical romance by John Oliver Hobbes, which is to appear as a serial in Harper's, is said to mark a wide departure from that author's previous method of writing fiction—the art of epigram.

The first volume of the Lovelace Byron is now ready. The poetry has been edited by Ernest Hartley Cole-ridge, and the letters by Rowland E. Prothero.

Charles Wells Moulton has been engaged by Putnam's Sons to write a dictionary of American literature.

"Some Stories About Cornell University" have been written by James Gardner Sanderson.

Opie Read's latest Tennessee story is called "The Waters of Caney Fork."

Romances of Landon in the olden times have been spun by Sidney Herbert Burchell in his new volume "In the Days of King James."

A new Chinese tale (not queue) is Charles Hannan's "Captivity of Pekin; or, A Swallow's Wing."

Christie Murray's new story concerns "A Race for Millions."

Dare you say that our bugler boy, with the blood of the lion race coursing in his veins, was less heroic than the street gamin of Paris who turned the tide at Marengo? Why the awful vengeance visited upon his murderers by Lee's intrepid men if he were not a brave and gallant boy whom they all loved? For aught we know his tragic death made Guilford Court House the turning point of the revolution.

"He stood," cried the sons of thunder, and their hearts ran over the brim.

"He stood by the old battalion, and we'll always stand by him! Aye, call for the grand crusade, and we'll answer to the name."

"And what will ye say?" the sergeant said:

"Dead on the field of fame!" And dare ye call that dying! The dignity sublime

That gains a furlough from the grave, and then reports to Time!

Doth earth give up the daisies to a little sun and rain,

And keep at their roots the heroes while weary ages wane!

Sing up the trumpet, Israel!

Sweet bugler of our God, For nothing waits thy summons beneath this broken sod;

They march abreast with the ages to the thunder on the right.

For they bade the world "Good morning!" when the world had said "Good night!"

We have seen in the last few months an example of brave men accomplishing more in their death than they would if they had lived. The murderer's hand that exploded the awful engine of death under our gallant ship in Havana harbor, by that act wiped out sectional lines in America and sealed the doom of Spanish tyranny in this hemisphere.

"Remember the Maine!" was upon the lips of gallant Dewey's men as they swept into Manila harbor and wrote a new page in the glorious history of our country and it will be the battle-cry when Morro Castle crumbles before the belching cannon of Sampson and the Spanish legions fly before the invincible army of Fitzhugh Lee and fighting Joe Wheeler.

God be praised, we are once more a united people. North and South and East and West are keeping step to the same music and marching under the same flag.

As we see our gallant boys going to the front to strike down tyranny, we know that the spirit of the men who died on this field has descended upon them in full measure.

A Return Engagement.

Sometime ago the Greensboro Dramatic club went to Danville and gave two performances for local charities, both of which were highly successful, artistically as well as financially. The people of Danville entertained our club so royally that an invitation was extended the Danville Dramatic club to pay this city a visit and give us an entertainment. This they promised to do and will be here Monday next. Our club and citizens generally will no doubt give them a hearty reception.

Our visitors will present that highly successful farce-comedy, "My Friend from India," which had so successful a run in New York city and other large cities and judging from what we have heard of the performance given by this club in Danville, our people have a treat in store.

An excursion will be run from Danville with a hundred people who will come to see the play here.

The Grandest Remedy.

Mr. R. B. Greeve, merchant, of Chilhowie, Va., certifies that he had consumption, was given up to die, sought all medical treatment that money could procure, tried all cough remedies he could hear of, but got no relief; spent many nights sitting up in a chair; was induced to try Dr. King's New Discovery, and was cured by use of two bottles. For past three years has been attending to business, and says Dr. King's New Discovery is the grandest remedy ever made, as it has done so much for him and also for others in his community. Dr. King's New Discovery is guaranteed for coughs, colds and consumption. It doesn't fail. Trial bottles free at C. E. Holton's drug store.

So Tired! So Tired! Chronic Dyspepsia!

For ten years I had been a severe sufferer from chronic dyspepsia, which was pronounced incurable. I was completely run down, and in the summer season was not able to do anything and spent a great part of the time lying down. I could not touch meat of any kind, or any solid food whatever, as I could not digest it at all and had to live on crackers and light diet. I was very nervous, would have severe nervous spells, and could not get any natural sleep. I was so restless. I suffered all the time from chronic dysentery, which kept me weakened down. That was my condition when I determined as a last resort to try Mrs. Joe Person's Remedy. I had tried so many treatments and so many patent medicines without benefit that I had no faith in anything and had almost made up my mind not to try another thing, when Mrs. Person came to my house last April and induced me to try her Remedy. I bought a dozen bottles. Felt no relief whatever until I was on the fourth bottle, when I knew I was getting better. I became stronger, got so I could sleep well and there was no necessity for me to lie down in the day time. I took twenty-two bottles before I stopped. My digestion is now perfect, and I can eat meat, vegetables, and anything else I want, and as much as I want. When I commenced the Remedy I weighed 98 pounds, now I weigh 115 pounds. Dysentery perfectly cured, and it is all owing to Mrs. Joe Person's Remedy. It is everything claimed for it.

TRACING A LOST STUD.

Lack of a Jeweler Who Dropped a Two Carat Diamond in the Street.

Some odd stories of the recovery of lost diamonds are told by an old Union square jeweler. One of them is his own experience.

"One day last June," he says, "I happened to recollect that I was going to a reception. Before leaving the store I wrapped my two karat diamond stud in a piece of tissue paper and slipped it into my vest pocket. After dinner, while dressing in my room, I went to my pocket to get the stud. It was not there. I put my hand in my fob pocket, thinking it was surely there; then in the other vest pocket, then in the inside pocket, and then in my four trousers pockets, but it was in none of them.

"I left that on my desk," I thought. "I will find it there in the morning. I will put on a plain gold stud tonight."

"The next morning the stud was not to be found at the store. I thought of every step I had taken on the way home, and then called our porter.

"George," said I, "just before I went home last night I slipped a diamond stud wrapped in tissue paper, into my pocket, and starting out of the store, went across Broadway, through Union square at Fifteenth street, going to the left of the fountain, and then up the center path to Seventeenth street and Fourth avenue; I went down the right hand side of Seventeenth street to Second avenue and then home. On my walk home I have a distinct recollection of putting my hand into my pocket for my penknife or something else. I must have pulled out the stud and dropped it. Now I want you to follow that path and look carefully every step of the way, and I don't want you to come back until you have found the stud."

"He started out and in less than half an hour returned with the stud. He had found it, still wrapped in the paper, in the gutter, a few steps this side of Second avenue, and he went home happy that night with a $20 goldpiece in his pocket."—New York Sun.

ANCIENT TIMEPIECES.

Various Methods of Measuring Time Prior to the Invention of Clocks.

We need do no more than allude to the habit after the reformation, and especially in Scotland, of preachers measuring their discourses by the hourglass in the pulpit. These marked an hour exactly. The first made in Charlemagne's day ran for 12 hours. Alfred the Great hit upon a method of measuring time, which shows that there was no Saxon one, though very probably some of the monasteries (then the only homes of knowledge) were acquainted with water clocks and hour-glasses, if not by practical knowledge at any rate by hearsay.

However, the kingdom in general followed Alfred's plan, which, though ingenious, necessarily lacked anything like the accuracy of the other inventions. Yet the king's idea was hailed as a wonderful effort of genius, which, for such an era by comparison with the general ignorance, it was. As every schoolboy (in this case literally) knows, Alfred marked time by rushlights. A long existence, by the way, has the rushlight enjoyed, seeing that middle aged people still remember its use in the nursery at night and the reflection of the circular holes in the tall metal shades on the ceiling.

Alfred, says an ancient authority, "that he might properly know how the hours passed, made use of burning tapers which were marked with lines and fixed in lanterns, an expedient invented by himself." So, by the way, were in 892 the lanterns of scraped wax which still some old fashioned rustics prefer to glass. But tapers, however, were then very expensive. The king might himself use these, but probably the rushlight was used by people in general.—London Standard.

Lincoln's Gift to a Fire Brigade.

The Sons and Daughters of Illinois held a meeting in Boston at which Vice President Henry Haynie told this story of Lincoln:

"The fire hose company of Springfield was very proud of its well equipped fire apparatus, and, desiring to procure some extra supplies, subscription papers were sent around. The small boys, myself among the number, were given a share in the work. I went up to some dusty rooms over a grocery and entered the law office of Lincoln. He asked me numberless questions, and I had to tell him all I knew of this fire brigade and its members. Then he said: 'Well, I'll tell you what I'll do. I'll go home to supper—Mrs. Lincoln is generally good natured after supper—and then I'll tell her I've been thinking of giving $50 to the brigade, and she'll say, "Abe, will you never have any sense? Twenty dollars is quite enough." So tomorrow, my boy, you come around and get your $20.'"—Chicago Times-Herald.

Cabs in Berlin.

When an American enters a cab in Berlin for the first time, he is said to be absorbed for half an hour in studying the impressive notice hung up there in for the benefit of passengers. It reads, literally translated, thus: "No passage money has the passenger guest to pay, if to him not on the mounting of the cab the valid passage tickets, on height of the for a simple passage to be paid passage money, by the coachman down reached become are."—Chicago Inter Ocean.

Not His Fault.

"Fweddy, why don't you let your mustache grow?"

"Why don't I let it? Good heavens, dear boy, I do, but it won't."—Chicago Record.

Notice
At the annual sale of Registered Jersey Cattle from Occaneechee Farm, April 7, 1898, I bought the thoroughbred Jersey Bull No. 3, Romola's chief, 41425 A J C C., sire Meridale Buffer 31346. Dam Romola of Beverly 47860. Romola is one of the best Cows at Occaneechee farms. Her dam was imported. The sire, Meridale Buffer is from dam Meridale coquette, 64535, whose record at two years old in one week was 17 pounds butter. Her grand dam was Ida of St. Lambert, who made 30 pounds butter in one week and milked 87 pounds in one day. The grand sire of Meridale Buffer is Ida's Roter of St. Lambert. This is a great Bull, standing for years at the head of Miller Sibleys herd. Also carries the blood of Matilda 4th, 80 pounds milk in a day and 26 pounds butter in a week. Stoke Pogis and Stoke Pogis 3rd. Will stand at my stable near Finishing Mills.
